— DEDICATION —

A Winner Makes Commitments A Loser Makes Promises

The class of 1983 is pleased to announce the dedication of the Traces yearbook to Miss Rosemary Sullivan. Our class is grateful and honored to have her as a member of our high school community.

Miss Sullivan has been a physical education teacher and coach at Fermi since 1974. As a coach, she asks her teams only to give their best. She is as dedicated to her teams as they are to her. Along with game strategy, Miss Sullivan also instructs her teams in self-discipline, desire, and pride. She is thoughtful enough at each season's end to give special, individual trophies and awards to the athletes who try a little harder, and comic awards to those who appeal to her sense of humor. The success of her teams can be attributed to her personal philosophy: "The degree of success is determined by the members of the team." By her own definition, Miss Sullivan is a success at Fermi.

Besides coaching, Miss Sullivan has volunteered her services to other school functions. She has advised the Student-Faculty Senate, has sold tickets to the football games, and has aided in the organization of the graduation ceremony. She is always ready to lend a hand when needed; her benevolent dedication can be seen in her eagerness to devote extra time to talk, to help, to coach.

Miss Sullivan's enthusiasm, effort, desire, and dedication are an inspiration to the class of 1983, and she exemplifies for us the way life should be lived. She has prepared us for the future by demonstrating the need for us to unselfishly donate our time and our talents to outside interests and by emphasizing the value of one who is able to make and keep commitments. As a Physical Education teacher, she has stressed the importance of active bodies as well as alert and dynamic minds. We, the class of 1983, wish to thank Miss Sullivan for all she has done for us.

with mixed emotions, forming a completely new, and much larger unit: Enrico Fermi High School, 1983. Picture 395 freshmen and 415 sophomores coming from Kosciuszko and Kennedy Junior High Schools to create a four year curriculum. Picture 1,744 apprehensive students sharing the confusion of opening day. Picture 133 optimistic teachers and administrators anticipating a successful transition for this school year. Picture 28 of those teachers relocated and just as uncertain as those incoming students.

Fermi sustains 25% increase in 1982.

Picture the appearance of less space at Fermi due to crowded halls, mobbed stairways and elongated, time-consuming lunch lines.

The Traces 1983 Yearbook Staff has tried to capture a panoramic view of Fermi's growth this year. Throughout the book, you will see how we portrayed the year's constant changes, developments, and improvements: requirements for everyone involved, to achieve a satisfactory adjustment at Fermi.

The Traces 1983 Staff invites the reader to turn the page and see how we pictured you.

a picture of augmentation in 1983. We have grown, not only by the population explosion of both faculty and students, but also through a deluge of new books and supplies. Each department at Fermi has expanded its curriculum and has added new textbooks to increase the variety of offerings available to all grade levels. Incoming teachers have initiated the new ninth grade curriculum, and are doing their share of educating the upperclassmen as well.

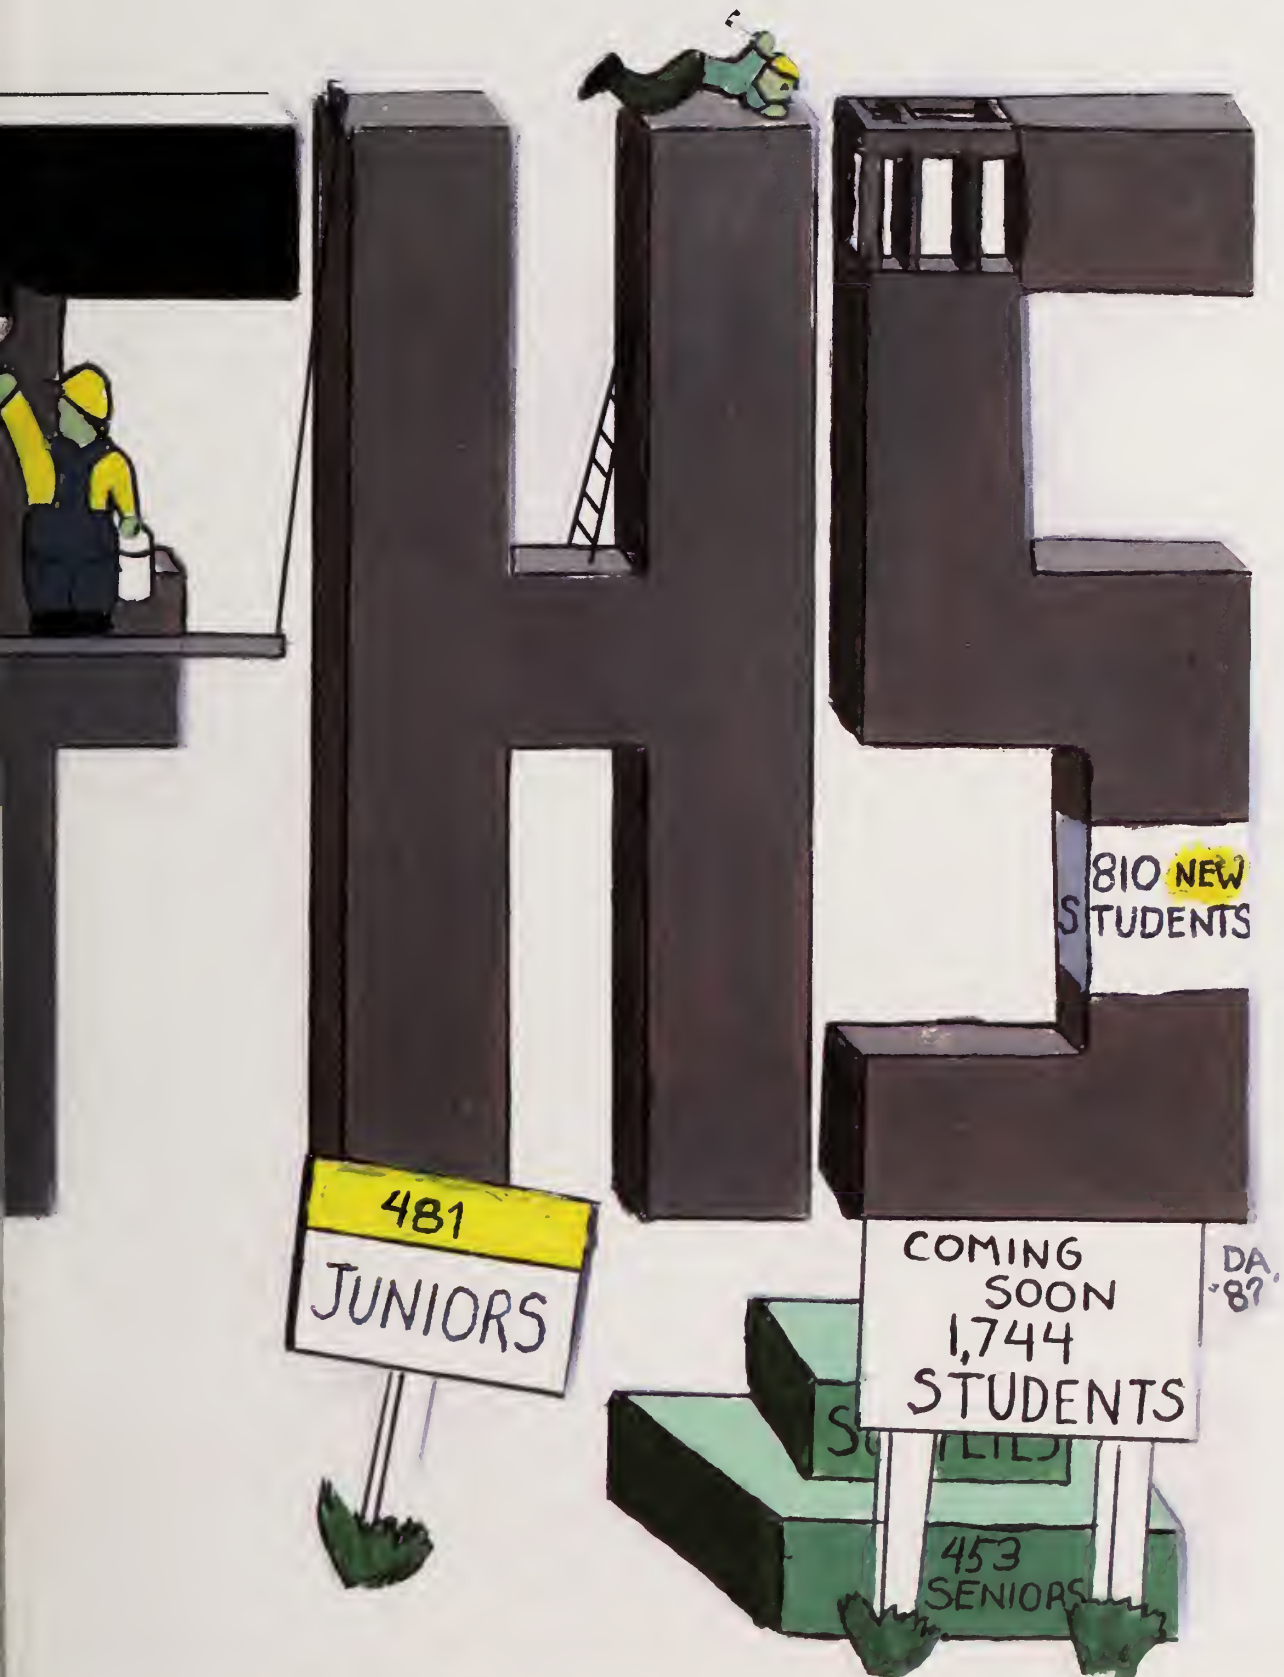

This year at Fermi there were more teachers than classrooms from which to teach. Due to this situation, many teachers had to adjust to "floating" from classroom to classroom, with no homebase from which to work. Teaching within this framework presented new challenges. Organization became a key word; frustration and fatigue became key problems. Still other teachers had to "give up" their classrooms during their preparation periods to make way for the "floaters." This took away their time to collect their thoughts, to organize their classrooms, and to generally prepare for the busy day ahead. Some Department Heads had to also adapt to their new environments: their offices were relocated so classroom space would be available. Despite the many adjustments inherent to those situations, the faculty readied themselves to accept the challenges and to make the best of their new surroundings. The result was a unified group with a common goal. Together, the faculty learned to be flexible and understanding toward one another and toward their teaching jobs.

Students were also affected by changes in Fermi's environment. When Fermi opened its doors for the first day of the 1982-1983 school year, returning students were dismayed to find that their favorite hangouts, the alcoves, no longer existed! These students accepted the newly-constructed storage rooms that took their places. The upper classmen found themselves mixed with the newcomers in many classes, and all students learned to interact with one another constructively in an academic environment. The crowded halls that posed a problem for all at the beginning of the year soon became more roomy as both new teachers and new students learned their ways around the school.

These changes surprisingly resulted in a smooth transition from a three year high school to a four year establishment. The positive variations mentioned are merely a few examples of the alterations at Fermi High. But, because modifications were made, we learned a great deal about ourselves and about our school as a whole. We did add on physically, both in supplies and population, but we also built closer relationships between all of the inhabitants at Fermi. We grew as a unit, and we worked together at developing a high sense of school pride. And, in the end, overtones of confidence, encouragement, and reassurance concerning our futures were projected. The transitions that began with an air of uncertainty are now transformed into a success. The four classes of Enrico Fermi High School in 1983 worked hard in their first year together, and that work paid off when they achieved their ultimate goal: they became a team.

SENIORS

Presidential Address

... Moving on.

Picture us ... throughout our three years at Fermi High, developing a close relationship with one another and with our school. This closeness has brought about school spirit, and our willingness to become involved in our many Senior Class activities.

As we look back over our Sophomore and Juniors years, memories of these activities come to mind: the Homecoming class floats, the dances and proms, and the athletic events. In our Senior year we welcomed the first freshman class to Fermi, along with the incoming sophomores. We also extended our support to the Junior Class. We will remember this year as a time of great anticipation and excitement. The magazine drive, the float for Homecoming, the Senior Variety Show, Class Night, and the Prom are just a few successful highlights, to be cherished forever, along with our own personal memories.

We will always remember our foreign exchange students. Our guests from around the globe have enriched our lives with their cultures and we hope that we have enriched their lives as well.

We appreciate and wish to acknowledge the effort put forth by the faculty, the guidance counselors, and the administrators of Fermi, without whose assistance our goals could not have been reached. Together we strived to become prepared to enter the adult world, which we must, upon graduation.

During the three years at Fermi, we have kept our individuality, and yet, we have grown close as a unit. We look forward to graduation with different wishes and desires, but no matter which path we may choose to follow, we will always be a part of the Enrico Fermi High School graduating class of 1983.

3. John LeDoux and John Sweeney's spirit towers above all!

4. Yvonne Quarterman snickers over a well-told joke.

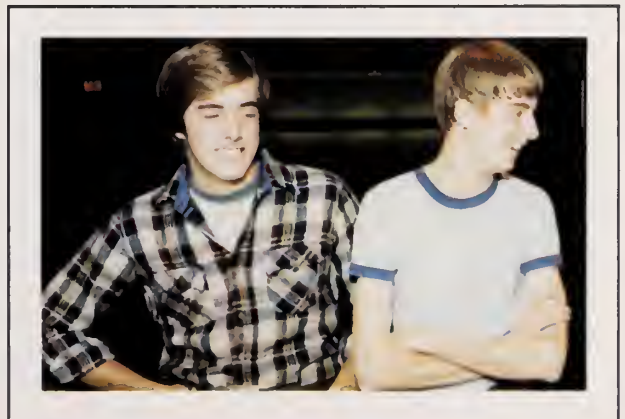

1. A perplexed Terry Metta is determined to finish her homework.
2. Tracy Gardner and Karen Avery enjoy a senior study.
3. Lunchtime is also funtime for John Pilkington.
4. Brian Donnelly jokingly says, "That's the fifth time this week Deneen Toman has turned me down."

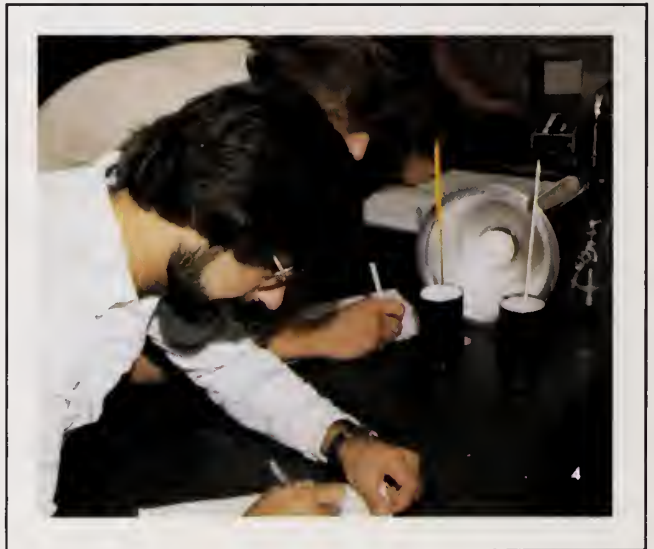

1. Hey! What's up Al Aldo?
2. If you twist Scott Kaupin's arm enough . . .
3. Is Joe Chappell up to another one of his devious pranks?
4. "Promise you'll catch me!" demands Mary Wachowiak peering down at the third cute boy on the left.

1. Anne Zarcaro and Rosa Rosato ponder Miss Civale's Italian recipe.
2. Anne Sharron observes a chemistry lab with great interest.
3. Mary Wachowiak and Dave Bromage "size up" to the Fermi mural.
4. Gary Williams shows his pass to the doubting hall monitor, Mrs. Massey.
5. Eric Raffia and John Moody laugh at each other's crazy ideas.

1. Tom Cooney sits back and daydreams in his Biology class.
2. Shelly Heldreth asks, "What do you mean there's something fuzzy and yellow on my shoulder?"
3. During a silent moment, members of the class of 1983 ponder their futures.
4. Dan Leduc diligently works on his test.
5. The senior hangout is thickly populated during passing time.

1. Scott Kaupin, Sam Parkman, Lynne Kaupin, and John LeDoux demonstrate friendship senior style.
 2. Mr. Flebotte's Human Behavior class is overwhelmed by his rationalization of life.
 3. Busy working on her needlepoint in art class is Gina Guilmette.
 4. Mike Cotnoir and Craig Collins are amused by the results of their science experiment.

1. "Why doesn't my homework look like yours?" asks Chris Demeo.
2. Mike Agro and Chip Dyer advertise the cafeteria's latest concoction.
3. "Boy is he tall and cute!" exclaims Kris Michalsen.
4. Pat Hart wears his "spirit cap" with pride.

1. Jeff Levine waits for his cue in band.
2. Jennifer Carnes contemplates her next move.
3. Gino Cassista ponders his future seriously.
4. Kris Kelliher explains her theory in Advanced Biology class.

FACULTY

28 New Faculty

Educating.

Picture . . . the educational challenge of the 1982-1983 school year. Picture the incorporation of 28 new faculty members due to the closing of Kosciuszko and the addition of a ninth grade class to Fermi. Picture the 105 veterans of Fermi faculty in transition alongside their colleagues. Picture the extra demands placed upon teachers by larger class sizes. Picture teachers trying to maintain personalized instruction, despite the increased enrollment. Picture several teachers required to monitor hallways during in-session classes. Picture teachers "floating," changing from room-to-room, due to the lack of classroom availability. Picture this faculty determined to adapt to these transitions.

Other necessary personnel changes were required to accomodate the expansion in enrollment. One housemaster and one secretary transferred from Kosciuszko Junior High, replacing those people who previously occupied these positions. The loss of those people who transferred to other jobs or were laid off as a result of this substitution was truly unfortunate. However, the faculty of Enrico Fermi High School worked hard to adjust and successfully met the 1982-1983 school year's challenge.

freshman teams!

Teaming up.

Picture us . . .

The athletic teams of Fermi struggling through many long hours of practice. Picture some of those practices being held late at night. Picture our athletes sharing their lockers with two or three of their fellow teammates. Picture the overcrowded bus rides due to the newly added freshman teams. Picture nine nervous freshman teams learning alongside their varsity counterparts. Picture three teams playing their home games at Asnuntuck Community College, the former Kosciuszko Junior High School. Picture the largest crowds in Fermi's history spectating at athletic games. Picture an enormous excitement among the athletes and fans alike. Picture us fighting to achieve a desired victory. Picture us accepting the letdown of defeat. Picture the strengthened values of sportsmanship and team effort becoming dominant elements in the Enrico Fermi High School Sports Program.

The 1983 Sports Staff has illustrated changes in the Fermi Athletic program. This year, nine new freshman teams were added to the sports curriculum. Many hardships and difficulties had to be overcome to start a new team. The nine new freshman teams faced numerous problems throughout their seasons. These new teams had to compensate for the lack of equipment, the cramped locker rooms, and the shortage of playing fields. Due to their lack of experience, they had to pass up the recognition that a varsity team receives and they also had the difficult task of learning new coaching systems. These new freshman teams are the future of the Fermi Sports Program. Their hardwork and accomplishments shall further enhance the level of competition at Fermi High School. We wish them luck in their future endeavors.

The changed sports program at Fermi has had many positive effects this year . . .

The changed sports program at Fermi has had many positive effects this year; increased enthusiasm, extra team effort, and the spirit of competition in every athletic endeavor has become evident. These are the transitions that have brought Fermi High School Athletics to an even greater level of accomplishment. Fermi High School can look forward with pride at its newly developing sports program.

Let us enjoy a little time of pleasure, a moment of fun and laughter, in the good fellowship of competition, and at the end, let us say farewell as friends till next we meet.

Interscholastic football is an educational experience in which an individual molds his mind, body, and spirit to that of his teammates in a cooperative effort to succeed. It is only through total commitment, self-sacrifice, and discipline that we can achieve our ultimate goal of success and find the enjoyment that comes from knowing we have tried our hardest and won.

In a sport such as wrestling, maximum performance gains are accomplished through goal setting. Once those goals are reached, goals must be reestablished and the process continues. In this way, each match is looked at as a learning experience, building to the state tournament where skills and techniques are perfected.

5. Shelly Heldreth strikes a pose that is sure to be an eye-catcher.

PEP RALLIES

FIGHT SONG

Enrico Fermi High School we're for you.
We proudly show your colors black, white, and blue.

Spirit high, we'll always do our best
With an F-E-R-M-I for you.

The fighting falcons out for victory
The score goes up, let's cheer, yes, we will always be

Fighting, winning, to achieve our goal
Stand and give a yell for victory.

The Pulse

The Pulse was established in 1980. After the faculty advisor, Ms. Folio, left Fermi in 1981, Mrs. Jonaitis and Ms. Mackley became the new faculty advisors. While newspaper sales make up a small part of the publishing fee, The Pulse's major source of income is from the sale of advertising space. With the hard work of the staff and advisors, The Pulse is, and will continue to be, a high-quality newspaper.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Changes that challenge!

Moving in.

Picture . . .

this year's freshman and sophomore classes coming en masse from the closed junior high to Fermi High School. Picture, in the initial week of school, those freshmen and sophomores seeking comfort in the familiar faces of teachers who also transferred to Fermi. Picture the increase of homework and responsibility that the transition from junior to senior high school demands. Picture the approval of "weighted grades", commencing in the fall of 1982 and affecting the course selection of the freshman and sophomore classes. Picture the junior class trying to remain uninfluenced while having to cope with the changes at Fermi. Picture the juniors in conflict with the amazingly altered hallways, crowded with 25% more people, many of them strangers. Picture the hopes of all students in search of a profitable four year education and the aspirations of students gaining preparation for the future.

In the 1982-83 school year, each of Fermi's four classes were faced with changes that challenged the patience, the dedication and the flexibility of all. However, some experiences proved to be rewarding for the freshman and sophomore classes. Never before had these two classes participated in Homecoming events. Through the production of class floats each respective class began to understand what class spirit was really about. Each class was introduced to the Student-Faculty-Senate, a much more involved and larger organization than the junior high's Student Council. The Freshman sports teams, a new division of the sport's program, participated successfully in their athletic events. Both the freshman and the sophomore classes were invited to take PSAT's, to join in the many new clubs and activities at Fermi, and to attend the Freshman/Sophomore Welcome Dance.

The Welcome Dance and the planning of the Senior prom would not have taken place without the Junior Class. The juniors were faced with the changes at Fermi also, but some policies remained the same for them. Only juniors were nominated as new members to the National Honor Society. Junior volunteers from the Student-Faculty-Senate helped clean the school grounds in preparation for the outdoor graduation ceremony. Other juniors were selected as ushers and usherettes for graduation, an event that preceded their final exams of the school year. In addition to these exams, some college-bound juniors opted to take SAT's; other students would return in the fall to take their college boards or Achievement tests in their senior year.

Picture selecting courses for a new school year. Picture the anxiousness of advancing to a higher grade. Picture the enthusiasm of returning from a long summer. Picture receiving new books for classes. Picture purchasing new notebooks, new pencils and plenty of erasable pens. Picture all of these supplies packed into new lockers. Picture the opening of a new school year. Picture the underclassmen MOVING IN.

HIGHLIGHTS

1982-1983

Picture . . .

yourself
reminiscent, trying to recall the class of 1983. Picture the who's who of superlatives and the fun it will be to see if they are still true! Picture the favorites of 1983 typifying your life as a high school student. Picture the news highlights jogging your memory of worldly events as you spent time at Fermi! Picture your yearbook; that keepsake momento which will not let you forget the highlights of 1983!

Picture . . .

the dedicated and unique who were voted superlatives for the class of 1983. Picture pleated pants, wool shirts, skinny ties, penny loafers and argyle socks, combining to create the outfits of the best dressed. Picture a brother and sister dominating the title of "Done Most for School." Picture the clowns who have finally been recognized for cracking a joke during a lecture, or livening up American History by tripping the teacher on his way back from the map. Picture the best buddies who advertise their friendship everywhere from the tops of barns to the backboards in the school parking lot. Picture the artists drawing caricatures of their teachers during class.

. . . picture the highlights jogging your memory of events as you spent time at Fermi!

Picture . . .

the favorite expressions, amusements, fads, pastimes and entertainments of the class of 1983. Picture looking back ten years from now and saying gas was only $1.22 a gallon! Picture remembering that your generation actually did say, "Gag me with a spoon!!" Picture having to admit you really did like punk rock and the new wave! Picture spending your allowance plus on a pair of designer jeans. Picture decorating a locker from top to bottom with Garfield, the Chipendale men, and Pat Benatar!?! Picture (. . . oh, picture) the school lunch; a bargain at 75¢!

with mindful regard the news events of 1983. Picture the unemployment rate at 13% — the highest since The Depression. Picture the birth of a British prince and the death of the Soviet leader, Leonid Brezhnev. Picture the tampering with Tylenol products and new packaging regulations for personal care products.

These are but a few of the significant events which shaped our lives. The superlatives, the "favorites" and the news: all unique to 1983, here in memory.

Do You Remember . . .

1. Who succeeded Leonid Brezhnev?
2. What the Prince of England's full name is?
3. Who the class artists are?
4. Who Barney Clark is?
5. Who won the Heisman trophy in 1982?
6. How many times Billy Martin was rehired by George Steinbrenner?
7. What the unemployment percentage was in 1982?
8. Who replaced Haig as Secretary of State in 1982?
9. How many names are etched in the Vietnam Memorial in Washington D.C.?
10. What Wayne Gretzky's jersey number is?
11. Who the award winning director of the movie "E.T." is?
12. Who received the greatest number of superlatives in 1983?
13. How much a Sony Walkman cost in 1983?
14. What character Tony Geary plays in "General Hospital?"
